INTRODUCTION

On the 12 rolls of this microcopy are reproduced the 27 volumes containing the population schedules of the 1790 census that are in the National Archives. There are schedules for Connecticut, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, and Vermont, although schedules for some counties are missing. The schedules are arranged by State and thereunder by county. Those for the area that became the District of Columbia (the location of the District was not authorized by Congress until July 16, 1790) are among those for Maryland--Montgomery and Prince Georges counties. On the first page of each volume, except that for Massachusetts, is a table of contents showing the page on which the schedules for each county begin. No schedules are known to exist for Delaware, Georgia, Kentucky, New Jersey, Tennessee, and Virginia; apparently they were destroyed during the British attack on Washington during the War of 1812.

An act of March 1, 1790 (1 Stat. 101), provided for taking the first census in the United States. The provisions of the act were extended on July 5, 1790 (1 Stat. 129), to include Rhode Island and, on March 2, 1791 (1 Stat. 197), Vermont, soon after each of those States had ratified the Constitution.

The 1790 schedules give only the names of the heads of families, and, for each household, the number of white males 16 years of age and above, the number under 16 years, the number of free white females, the number of all other free persons, and the number of slaves. There are annotations on and attachments to these schedules, such as certificates of oaths taken, population totals for various counties, and notes about grand jury proceedings. Later annotations, made by clerks in charge of census records, include tables of contents and page references to names of prominent persons. Only in Massachusetts were printed forms of uniform size used. For other States the schedules vary in page length from 4 inches to 3 feet; some returns were entered in merchants' account books, journals, and ledgers. Not until the 1830 census were printed forms of uniform size used by the census takers.

The records reproduced in this microcopy are part of the records in the National Archives designated as Record Group 29, Records of the Bureau of the Census.

In the same record group in the National Archives are the population census schedules for the 1800-1880 censuses, and the few surviving schedules for 1890. They are all available as microfilm publications and are described in Federal Population Censuses, 1790-1890: a price list of microfilm copies of the original schedules (copies are available on request).

In 1907-8 the Bureau of the Census published a series of volumes entitled Heads of Families at the First Census of the United States Taken in the Year 1790. The volumes, one for each State, list by county the names of the heads of families and such other information about the members of each family as was contained in the original schedules. At the end of each volume there is an alphabetical index to the names. Although there were no schedules for Virginia, they were reconstructed from State enumerations and appear as one of the volumes in this series. These volumes are also available in microfilm form as Microcopy T-498 (3 rolls).
